Summer in NZ

Weather in New Zealand is unique, just like the country itself.

Because of our shape, size and location in the world, the weather here is extremely temperamental, even during summer.

There can be 4 seasons in one day: rain, sun, hot, cold and wind. The best way to deal with this is to dress like an onion with lots of light layers.

The ozone layer above New Zealand is very thin meaning harmful UV rays are a lot stronger here, increasing your chances of sunburn. Slip, slop, slap and wrap is the motto here. Slip on a shirt, Slop on some sunscreen, Slap on a hat and Wrap on some sunglasses. Remember to regularly re apply sunscreen for the best protection and stay out of the sun as much as you can between 1100 and 1600.

Kiwi's love the sun, the beach and fish and chips. Try them all together at a nearby beach while being sun smart and your guaranteed a good day out

New Years Eve

The weather forecast this New Years Eve isn't the greatest but don't panic. There is still plenty to do indoors.

If your not heading off to some of the festivals, spend the night in town. All the bars and clubs are open and will be having specials.

Not a drinker? There are markets in Wynyard Quarter until 2100 and fireworks from the Skytower at midnight.

Reminders

* Some shops are closed over the holiday season though the ones that are open will likely be having sales. Make the most of this and fill your luggage for the trip home.

* Take a water bottle with you when you head out. It might not seem that warm now but it will change so quickly and you can get easily dehydrated.

* Dress with lots of thin layers. The weather here is so unpredictable that it can change in an instant from warm and sunny to raining and cold.
